Lincoln Middle School

December 2019

Starting in the beginning of November, Leaders of Future Generations at Lincoln Middle School began learning how to be a leader in their school and in the community. The group started out with discussing what the perfect world would look like in their eyes. The students presented issues such as poverty, racism, slavery, and environmental issues. The group decided to do a service project to tackle on the issue of poverty in Lancaster City. They came up with the idea of doing a food drive in the school and donating to a certain shelter. The Leaders of Future Generations also learned new leadership skills and qualities, decision making and communication skills to help them achieve their goal and help make a difference in the community. In a short few weeks, they have each demonstrated different types of leadership qualities, and worked together to accomplish a common goal. The group has a bright future ahead of them!

MEET DAVID!

(8th grade) David is very passionate about football and is on the Varsity football team. A little bit about David; his favorite movie is "When the Game Stands Tall", he wants to visit Los Angeles in the future, he enjoys eating pizza, and his career goal is to become a barber when he is older. He enjoys helping others which is evident with his leadership abilities to be encouraging, thoughtful, and supportive to his peers. He looks up to his mentor at Benchmark, Nate, because he is kind, friendly, and gives advice when needed. David shows exceptional leadership qualities in Leaders Of Future Generations and has a bright future ahead of him.

MEET SONYA!

(7th grade) Sonya loves playing basketball at her school and shopping in her free time. When at home, Sonya loves watching "Vampire Diaries" and her favorite food is tacos. One day she aspires to get a job in the medical field by becoming a doctor or a nurse and dedicating her life to helping others. Currently, her favorite subject in school is math and her favorite animal is a dog. Someday she'd love to visit Bora Bora because of how beautiful it is. Her greatest role model is her mother because of how supportive she is. Sonya is a very helpful and respectful leader among her peers!

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

Reynolds Middle School

The students at Reynolds Middle School began our Leaders of Future Generations program in late-November. Since then, we have been exploring topics such as how leaders impact the world, how leaders communicate with others and what qualities make up a good or bad leader.

The students were asked to creatively design their perfect world. We found their perfect worlds had a lot in common; many of them were designed to be free of drugs, violence, gangs and bullying. Some raised controversial questions such as "how could we create a world where only good people have jobs such as being a cop, or a doctor, or even a teacher?"; understanding that just because someone is given a position of leadership, does not necessarily guarantee they will be a good leader.

After much discussion regarding our goals for the service project, the students decided they want to focus on bullying and trying to educate the students at their school about positive behaviors so they can create a bully-free school. The students chose the name "Stand Tall, Stand Strong" as their project title. We are very excited to see where their ideas take us as we continue to formulate a plan to impact the student body at Reynolds Middle School.

"If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader."

Landis Run Intermediate School

The group of students, also known as the O.K. Agents, have been learning ways to appreciate each others' differences as well as embrace their similarities. Each student has different giftings, and they have been displayed through 'committee work' towards their big project!

Students took charge in running their "Building Community Day" on Friday, Dec. 6th, where they greeted students at the door, showed staff appreciation, spent time with students in their neighboring special needs classroom, gave opportunities for teachers to run creative lessons and games, and designed moments for students to meet new 'buddies' in mixed classrooms. The O.K. Agents diligently completed several preparations for the day, including painting two banners, creating candy grams, designing bracelets and team t-shirts, performing announcement skits, drafting emails, and getting ready for a Raptor art project. This bird art project, to be hung in the main hallway, will carry feathers representing what each student has learned about their new buddy for the day.

The O.K. Agents will complete their journey of learning and serving together in the group on Monday, December 16th. This will be a great time of celebration spent with students, mentors, parents, guardians, directors and facilitators as we highlight the outstanding achievement of every participant who has made this Leaders of Future Generations group possible.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

MEET ALLIE!

(5th Grade) Two of Allie's hobbies are training dogs and swimming. Her love for dogs is evident in that her favorite movie is Hotel for Dogs. She even has big dreams to one day go to college in New York to study animal behavior. Some interesting facts about Allie are that her favorite foods are smoked salmon and bacon, her favorite vacation spot is the Bahamas, and her favorite school subject is language arts. Allie looks up to her sister as a role model, saying that she and her sister enjoy spending time together, and she notices that her sister never gets upset. Specifically reflecting on the Leaders of Future Generations program, Allie has hoped to learn how to help others more effectively with greater knowledge about being a confident leader. Allie has identified some of her leadership qualities as being responsible, hard-working, a good problem-solver, and a friendly person. Allie has succeeded in being a shining example of leadership for her peers, and she has continued to serve her fellow teammates with a sincere heart.
